

ABSTRACT

A system and method for assessing remanufacturability of one or more items in an apparatus includes assessing a plurality of remanufacturing options for an item based on a determination of the overall condition for the item, a

5 determination on whether the item satisfies operation specifications, and a determination of a risk priority for the item to identify which of the plurality of remanufacturing options are viable.